

Recycling

If you were sensible God,
You would have given up humanity
as a lost cause by now.

Given up
and started again.

A new model

Shiny

Made in your image

Doing what you want

If you were sensible God,
You would have traded us in
for a newer model

Not so tatty

With all of the latest features

New improved

Ultra

More powerful

More effective

If you were sensible God
We wouldn't be here this morning

You would have thrown us away

As we have rejected you

You would have forgotten us

As we have forgotten you

God who recycles

Thank you, that you are not sensible.

©Clare McBeath & Tim Presswood, 2006